Dedication

WE, the "Class of 1956" dedicate the "Hourglass" to Miss Margaret M. Horner, Mr. Robert F. Barrett and Miss Laura N. Marland, who were our class and Hourglass Staff advisors.

We shall always have fond memories in our hearts of these three wonderful people.

Miss Horner, who in her busiest moments always found time to speak to us personally that she might in some small way inspire us —

Mr. Barrett, who contributed so much time and effort to the class and who made us realize many times our great responsibilities —

Miss Marland, who was always willing to do whatever she could to make our class a most prosperous one through her efforts in the Senior Play and Yearbook.

His has been the courage,

ANDREW PUPA

AS PRESIDENT of the Freshman Class you helped us set up the constitution which would guide us through our four years in high school.

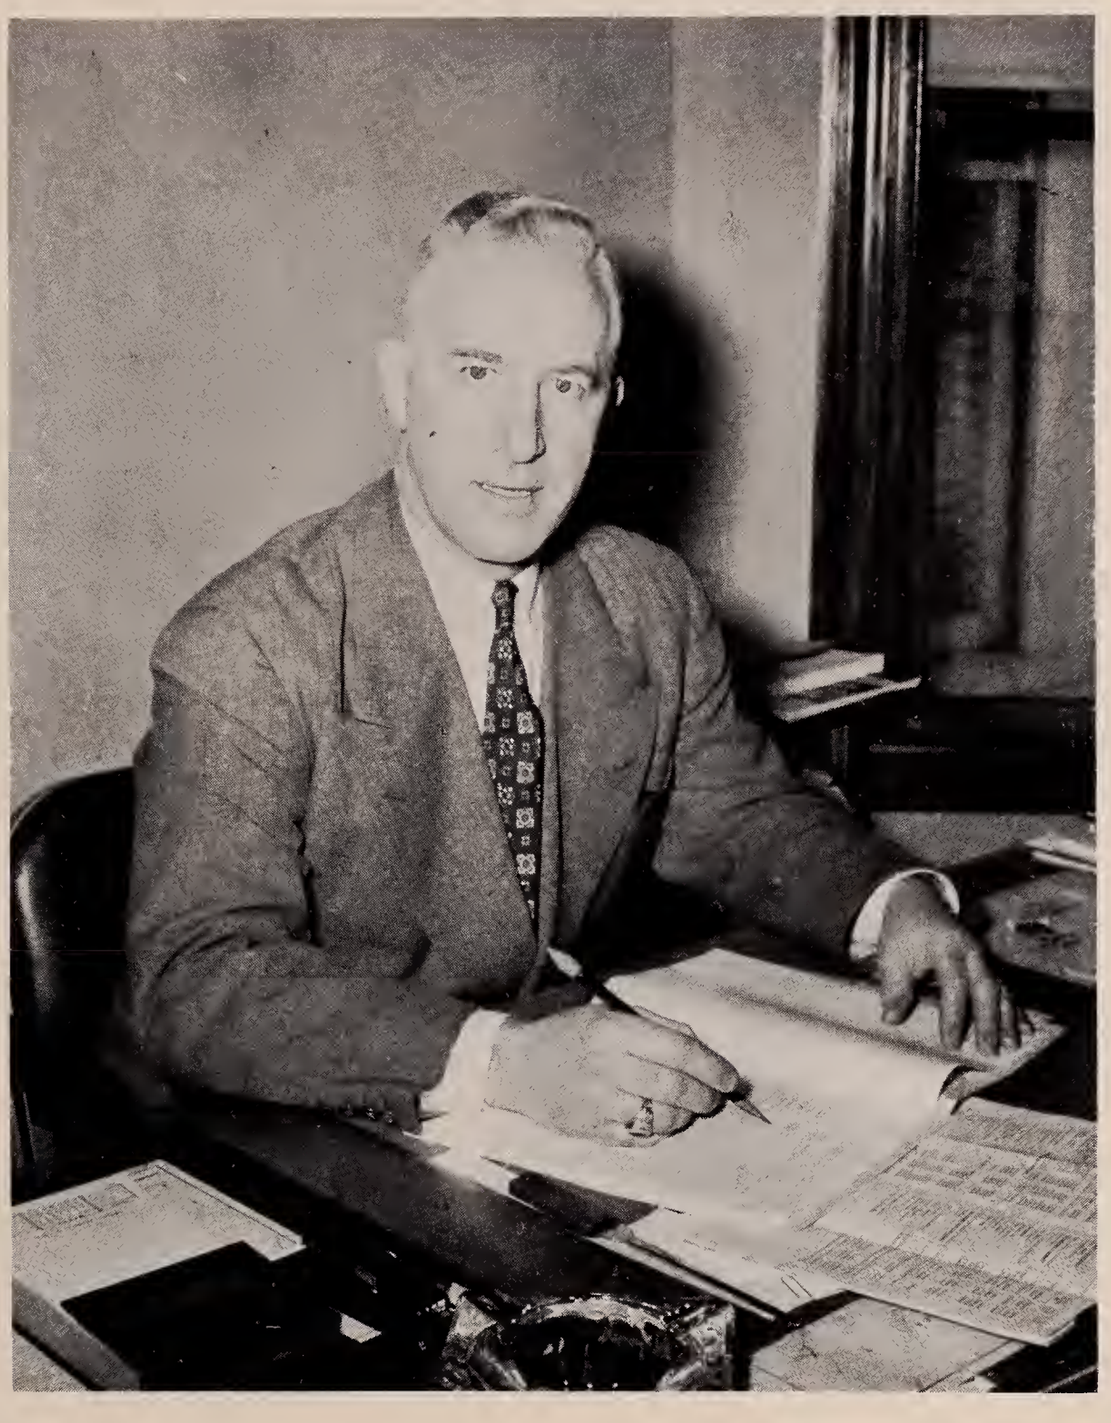
In your Sophomore Year you proved to be one of the most popular boys in the Class of '56.

You were elected Boys' State Representative in your Junior Year.

The Senior Year began and you were elected President of Student Council, a post you had to leave when you became ill.

We are sorry that illness prevented your finishing the senior year with us, and we want you to know that we missed you. The best wishes of the Senior Class of 1956 go to you and the class hopes that you will always remember us as we will remember you.

His has been the influence,



THE 1956 GRADUATE enters the most prosperous economy in this nation's history. The advances in scientific research, industrial development and sales promotion have been fantastic, with the consequent implication of employment for all. How well does the high school graduate fit into this picture? Are you equipped to take your place in this specialized world?

Your training thus far has been preparatory; the demands of modern business require a higher degree of skill. Moreover our country's position among the nations of the world is dependent upon the scientific and technical skill of each individual citizen. To fit into this modern era, your goals should be high and far reaching to the point that your training and education are in keeping with whatever innate ability you possess. Be a severe judge of yourself, and aim not at mediocrity!

May you enjoy a life full of success and happiness.

JOHN J. COLLINS
Superintendent of Schools

Theirs has been the leadership,

Congratulations to you, the Class of 1956, upon the successful completion of your high school career. For most of you, your formal education has come to an end. For others, a college degree will be earned by 1960. We have endeavored to provide you with the tools for a workable future: However, we now consider you a distinct unit, the Class of 1956, and as a unit, we pray that your success may be shared with others, your failures provide understanding and knowledge for yourselves, and that your eagerness, zeal and enthusiasm be never reduced by cynicism, despair and frustration.

BERNARD P. McMAHON
Principal

One of the most important phases of your education just completed has been your study and practice of democracy. You have learned to appreciate the vital necessity of preserving the democratic way of life with its respect for the dignity and worth of the individual and its insistence upon individual liberties and the right of every person to seek the highest development of his own capacities. You have learned what dangers lie in totalitarian systems, which submerge the individual in the state and recognize no human liberties. It is your duty and privilege to spread the knowledge and understandings you have gained, and to help preserve democracy by explaining its meaning and advantages.

My final request of you, the members of the Class of 1956, of Wilmington High School, is that you will live according to the Golden Rule.

Activities which . . .

Promoted our citizenship . . .

Student Guides

The Student Guides was an organization formed this year to remind each student of his democratic duty. This organization functioned during the Activity periods to help keep the students on their best behavior. The directors of this organization were Mr. Kelley, Mr. O'Doherty, Miss Mitchell, and Miss Sharp.

Dramatics Club

Dramatics Club was reorganized in Wilmington High School under the direction of Miss Margaret Horner. This year the club took the responsibility for the Christmas Assembly. A play, "The Tree," and Nativity scene were the highlights of the assembly. Three one-act plays were put on during the spring season, including "No More Boys", for the Student-Council Convention.

The club had an enrollment of thirty-five and later grew to ninety-five members.

The officers elected this year were:

President: ---------- Maureen McKenna
Vice President: ---------- Theodore Smith
Secretary: ---------- Martha Boyle
Treasurer: ---------- Freda Shepherd

Gave us culture . . .

Foreign Language Club

The Foreign Language Club was another new organization formed this year with approximately eighty members.

The club has been fortunate to have had Wilmington High School as the center of the "'Universal Correspondence League". They have pen pals from almost every country.

The following were elected to office in January:

President: ---------- Albert Kitchener
Vice President: ---------- Freda Shepherd
Secretary: ---------- Beth Byam
Treasurer: ---------- Jacqueline Ashworth

Glee Club

The Wilmington High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Alice Plevock and Miss Kalil, had a very productive year. The club has been divided into two sections: Seventh and Eighth Grade Glee Club and High School Glee Club.

The club sang at the Christmas Assembly and produced the "Mikado" during the spring season; they also sang at Graduation Exercises.

The following girls were chosen as officers of the Glee Club:

President:	Edna Burns
Vice President:	Edythe Carnes
Secretaries:	Patricia Snow, Wilma Jones, Judith Gratcyk
Treasurer:	Jean Bousfield
Librarian:	Shirley Williamson
Chairs:	Grace Sutton

Band

The Wilmington High School Band entered a period of reorganization by filling its ranks with new members. Membership now stands at forty-three. Although the road to having a complete instrumentation is long and slow, headway is gradually being made to include a broad plan emphasizing the Brass Section.

A system of points and credits has been placed in effect whereby members may earn promotions leading from a third class musician to Senior Commander to Master Musician.

A student who has successfully completed his service and musical education with the Wilmington School Band will receive the "John Phillip Sousa Band Award". A plaque will be available for the school, and a distinctive medal-award will be available for the student.

Beginning in May, marching fundamentals were directed, after which the band was heard at Memorial Day Exercises and at the Senior High Graduation Exercises.

Student Council

For the first year in Wilmington High School the Student Council has consisted of twenty-five members, each member being a representative from one of the home rooms.

The aim of the Student Council is to learn to work with others in the promotion of school spirit and to better school and community relationships.

This year's projects included: Installation ceremony, annual magazine drive, selling of pencils, bookcovers, and school beanies, January Winter Carnival, Student-Teacher's Day, and for the first time in Wilmington High School the meeting place for the Eastern Massachusetts Council Convention in April.

Miss Elene Farello was faculty advisor to the Student-Council.

This year's members are:

President: ---------- Andrew Pupa
Vice President: ---------- Samuel Cavallaro
Secretary: ---------- Lorraine Brennick
Treasurer: ---------- William Hall

Alternate for ---------- Andrew Pupa was Robert Reed
Robert Phillips was Charles Sweet
Patricia Burke was Nancy Bennett

The Building Committee of the Wilmington High School was made Honorary Member of the Student Council.

The Alpha Staff

The Alpha Staff under the direction of Miss Marjorie Marshall and Miss Laura Marland, has completed its third prosperous year.

Winter, valentine and spring issues of the Alpha were printed.

Alumni news, Can You Imagine column, Dear Frustrated, Class News, Song poll, Student-Council reports, Guidance Department Notes, New Year's Resolutions, Club news, Sports column, humor, essays, New Faces, Student Views, cross-word puzzles and cartoons all appear in the Alpha as attractions to the students.

The paper is published by the English Department; and mimeographed by the Commercial Department.

The staff includes:

Debating Club

The Wilmington High Debating Club, a new organization in the high school, was under the direction of Miss Kennedy and Mr. Dwyer. The members of the club learned the basic rules of debating and learned how to use them.

The club elected for its officers, Ronald Raposo, President; James Kerr, Vice President; and Ann Cavanaugh, Secretary.

Several debates were held within the club and a debate was held in the auditorium with Reading High School. William Williams, Martha Boyle, and Linwood Kenp represented the Wilmington Club. After a great battle the Wilmington orators came out on the shy end of a very close score.

In all, the club proved itself to be a success and worth while to continue next year.

Chess and Cue Club

One of the newest clubs in the high school, the chess and cue, under the guidance of Mr. J. Gilligan, is the first instance where a chess and cue club was attempted in Wilmington High School. The chess and cue met with the approval of both teachers and students because chess is not only educational but a lot of fun when played correctly. The call for members was answered by the following, Ronald Raposo, Charles Rounds, Robert Matonis, Gerald Maloney, William Williams, James Kerr, Tom McAndrews, John Kerr, Ross Coombs, Lawrence Foley, and Kenneth Lyons. The first object of the club is that the members learn to play chess correctly. This is done by theory class, then the application of the theory in actual games. Inter-club tournaments were held to find who was the best player. All the members who participated say that it was exciting, although some games were real brain strainers.

Football

The football squad of Wilmington High School, under the direction ot Coach Constantine O'Doherty and Assistant Coach John Ritchie, began in September with high hopes for a successful season.

Practice was postponed for two weeks because of the delay in school, but was immediately on its way, under the leadership of Co-Captains Jay Palmer and Robert Branscombe, when school commenced.

The first game was played against Burlington at the home field; the team went down in defeat, 14-7. Bernard Nally scored the only touchdown, with John Amaro assisting for the extra point. Playing Ayer the following week, the boys lost by a score of 14-0 and continued losing the next three games to North Andover, Wayland, and Dracut, all by high scores. With a change in the line-up and still plenty of determination, the team went to Phillips Academy, only to come out in the short end of the score, 19-12. In this hard-fought game, William Hall, a converted guard-halfback, scored both touchdowns.

The next game scheduled was the traditional one with Tewksbury, which turned out to be the hardest-fought battle of the season, ending with a score of 28-13, in Tewksbury's favor. The two touchdowns for our team were made by Sam Cavallaro and William Hall. Bill Hall was assisted by George Monroe for the extra point.

The boys finished the season losing to Chelmsford 28-6, with William Hall going over for the only touchdown.

Field Hockey

Coach Alice McCarthy did a splendid job, coaching the team to victory, this being her first year as head of girls sports at Wilmington. She is to be commended for her good work.

Due to the late start of school which shortened the field hockey season only two games were played. The first game in spite of their efforts was lost to Chelmsford 3-1. The second game was with Woburn and they topped them with a score of 1-0. During both of these games, win or lose, the team showed a great amount of spirit and good sportmanship.

and determined will . . .

Hockey

The Hockey squad, under their new coach James Kelley, were looking forward to a good season, even if they did not have the proper practice area.

The boys played only two games, both against Phillips Academy. Although they lost both games the squad looked as if it had promise.

The graduating members of the team were Co-Captains George Clements and Robert Swanson, and Robert Sweet.

Then add their ambition . . .

Girls' Basketball

The girls' basketball team this year had plenty of spirit, enthusiasm and ability. Their greatest satisfaction was in defeating their long time rival, Tewksbury, by a score of 61-55. All the games this year were good, but this one topped them all! Two of the games were heartbreakers; one lost to Chelmsford by two points, and the other to North Andover by only one point. Both of these games went into overtime. Co-Captain Pat Bennett aided in leading the team to victory by her 20 to 30 points scored per game. The coach, Alice McCarthy, did her very best to make every game a win for Wilmington.

The members of the team are as follows:

Patricia Bennett — co-captain
Jeanne Ashworth — co-captain
Martha Boyle

Boys' Basketball

Basketball this year was a little dismal for W. H. S. The boys won only one game against Lowell Trade at the beginning of the season. Because the new gym was not completed, the boys could not get the practice that they needed.

Two of the best games were played against Tewksbury. Both games were fairly close.

Even though they could not have a winning season, we know they tried their best.

Playing their final basketball game for W. H. S. were Co-Captains Richard Ethier and Charles Rounds, Francis Stone, Albert Roberts, Richard Moore, James Marsi, Bernard Nally, and Ronald Raposo.

And stir in their merit. . .

Girls' Softball

The girls' softball team has played and won their first five games by large margins. Under the able coaching of Alice McCarthy the team moves into its fourth undefeated season.

The members of the team are as follows:

Ruth Howell
Gwendolyn Fisher
Marion Dawson
Ann Sullivan

Baseball

This year the baseball team began the season with high hopes for a successful season. Even before the weather was warm enough for baseball, the boys were practicing in the gymnasium under the direction of their new Head Coach, Joseph Gilligan, and Coach O'Doherty.

There were many players returning from last year, including seniors Robert Branscombe, Richard Moore, Robert Swanson and Richard Ethier.

The boys had a very encouraging season by winning a majority of their games.

EDUCATION — OUR MOST VITAL NEED

Ever since the beginning of time, the desire for an education has driven man onward and upward. The early cave man depended upon his education for actual existence, and, as time passed, man's knowledge and desires grew. Because man became dissatisfied with his way of life, he began to plan for better things. Centuries passed, and man's scope of life kept increasing. He learned the use of firearms and warships, and also the practicality of trade. Man learned much about the geography of the earth, due to his intense curiosity and his desire to extend the boundaries of his small world.

Education has provided us with many things. It has given us language, so that we may converse with our friends and associates; it has given us a way of life, so that we may become independent and self-supporting; it has given us a desire to make our mark, to do something of which we can be proud. All of these advances were made through education.

Each of us graduating here tonight realizes that he has received his basic background in education. For most of us, our school days are over. We recognize the fact that if we have done our best, we should be able to take our place in the world of today's business. Those of us who continue on to college will receive an even more intricate, detailed knowledge of the type of work we have chosen. This knowledge, must be made to work for us when our time comes to enter a certain delegated field. If we have not acquired as much education as we could, we must be content with our situation and let others pass us by.

Most of our present leaders in various fields have adapted to the changing world, and they realize that today's dreams will be tomorrow's realizations. Today's scientists, many of whom number among the most learned men in the world, have high dreams for America's future. Many projects are being planned that will increase our knowledge, such as the interplanetary flights which are no longer being ridiculed, but are actually being thought of in terms of everyday life. Medical research also has many hopes for the future. Many workers in laboratories have labored tirelessly to provide us with new medicines and drugs that will help prevent sickness and prolong our lives. Without education, these men would be powerless to help prevent the ravages of disease. Their hopes for the future run high! Through today's modern methods of production, man's working hours are gradually being cut down. This reduces the toll taken on the human body, thus making it possible for man to live a longer, more useful life. All these fields need and require many more trained experts — much more encouragement to continue their work. We cannot let them down! We all must do our part!

Because of today's modern education, the American family of the present is made up of highly intelligent individuals. They take pride in themselves, their homes and the other members of their families. Our economic prosperity is a direct result of the unity of the home—there must be peace and contentment in the home if there is to be peace and contentment in the nation. Through education and an understanding of our fellow man, our prosperous cycle of life shall, and must continue!

Salutatory

BEVERLY BRYANT

THE END — AND THE BEGINNING

Members of the School Committee, Mr. Collins, Mr. McMahon, faculty, parents and guests: The Class of 1956 extends to you a cordial welcome to this our graudation, the completion of our high school career.

Our twelve years of schooling have been a long, slow climb, but we have now reached the top of Mt. Success. You ask, "What is Mt. Success?" To us it is reaching the highest peak after twelve years of preparation. It is graduation.

Here we are, one hundred two of us ready to go out and face responsibility. With all the juvenile delinquency and other such hindrances to the normal growth of a child, our parents had many anxious moments during our childhood. When we were very young, you worried about our acquiring the wrong habits, or if we got a cold, you rushed us to the doctors. Then you were presented with an additional worry when we started school. Would we make the right kind of friends? Would we adjust ourselves to this new life? You were anxious about us until we reached home after school each day. This went on for a number of years, until all of a sudden you realized that your son or daughter had matured quite rapidly, and you knew that it wouldn't be long before he or she would be on his own. But whenever anything goes wrong or we need advice, to whom do we run? None other than Mom or Dad.

Many times I thought, as I know practically every other boy and girl did, that you were trying to be domineering when you made us come home at a certain time, or felt that we were mingling with the wrong crowd. At times when we asked for money, you refused because you said we did not appreciate its value. We were often hurt because of this, and even went so far as to say you no longer loved us. If we could only have seen ahead to this day, and realized that all of these rules and restrictions were for our own benefit, and to teach us something! That something we could not find in a book, but through the love of you, our parents, we were guided along the right path.

You can sit back now and say, "I have completed one difficult job" and you can congratulate yourself for having helped your son or daughter reach this one important peak in his or her life. You have worked hard to prepare us for a good future, and we have worked hard to make you proud of us. We could not have done it without your guidance and the guidance of our teachers.

We also owe much to them! They were our substitute parents during school hours, teaching us and guiding us to choose the right career. Our parents put us in the hands of these trained people to teach us to think for ourselves and use intelligent reasoning. They, too, had to have patience and many of us tried to see how far their patience would go, but the teachers never gave up.

We owe a great deal to both our parents and our teachers, and I am sure every one of us graduating here tonight would now like to thank our parents, teachers, and friends for everything they have done for us, and we shall try to prove that you were right in having so much faith in us.

This is the beginning of a new life for us in which we shall have to do things for ourselves now instead of running to Mom or Dad or a teacher. We have been taught and trained well, so now we intend to show how well we have benefitted from this.

Directly before us looms a steep path which I trust will not cause great difficulty to my fellow students and me. It is the path that leads to higher education and the business world. I hope the remainder of the journey and the goal will be as pleasant and successful as the beginning has been.

So with a sorrowful but grateful heart, we bid goodbye to Wilmington High School whose pleasant memories will always linger with us.

BARBARA ODIORNE

THE GREATEST INFLUENCES IN OUR LIVES

An influence, whether it is present in the life of a child or a mature person, has the tendency to control his thoughts and actions without direct authority. A young child is susceptible mostly to good influences, but as he grows, he becomes exposed to several types. Through his education he is able to distinguish between influences which tend to minimize his sense of responsibility and to make him unaware of his democratic duty, and those which contribute to his development as an alert, responsible citizen.

The earliest influence in the life of every child is his parents. Mother tries her best to teach the child the difference between right and wrong, and considers herself successful when he begins to behave and show respect. In time of need, he runs to his mother for love and affection, which is the greatest healing power. The child's faith in his mother, and his confidence that she will soothe him, is the begining of a solid foundation they will build together in his childhood and he will continue to erect in his maturity.

When a child reaches the first grade of school, he experiences the second great influence, his teacher. To him she is much like his mother, and he begins to rely on her when his mother is not near. It is here, in the primary grades, that a child learns to adjust to existing conditions, meet new playmates and get along with children of his own age. As he advances in school he acquires certain skills, which he will have to use later in a discriminatory fashion. His teachers influence him in the hope that some day they will feel their talents have not been in vain. He is taught responsibility, respect, and cooperation.

High school is considered the next great influence in the life of a growing child. In school he is expected to accept the responsibilities that accompany membership in his class and in various activities.

The modern high school has now planned a curriculum which enables its students to receive the best preparation possible for adulthood, college, and the business world. History courses teach the problems which our ancestors met and how they overcame their difficulties for our benefit. It is thus the duty of a democratic citizen to provide for the future for the benefit of his children. He becomes aware of the complexities in this modern age and how to cope with them as a responsible person should, through economics and problems of democracy. Through mathematics, the sciences and English he learns the origin of the everyday objects around him, as well as how to think constructively, to reason logically and to act accordingly.

This high school training will remain with him throughout his life, to aid him in recognizing the difference between the good and bad influences surrounding him. He may feel justified in himself now that he is capable of using his eyes and ears with discrimination to separate harmful propaganda from truth, and sensationalism from common sense. He is able to differentiate between the false reasoning of people who try to justify their rebellion to authority or contempt for the law, and an honest attempt to "know thyself". He may now feel the security of profitting from previous mistakes in an effort to do what is right.

Every member of a high school graduation class has successfully completed twelve years of the training necessary to meet the responsibilities he must meet as a democratic citizen and an individual capable of serving his community.

We have been exposed to many types of influences, both good and bad. Through all these trials and temptations, the love and faith that our parents, teachers and friends have had in us, has sustained us that we might become a credit to those who have served as guides and inspiration in moments of doubt and despair. We feel that they will always strengthen us when we falter, because they have given unselfishly of themselves to insure us the proper training to draw our childhood to a close.

We realize now that it was a difficult task for them and we shall always strive to be a credit to them and show them our deep appreciation.

NANCY ANDERSEN

THE LOG OF THE GOOD SHIP
"WILMINGTON 1956"

First Cruise.

Temperature: Cold and falling.

Barometer: New all time low, the upperclassmen being the first to notice just how low.

Wind: Very little.

During September in the year 1952, under the orders of Captain Andrew Pupa, we set sail, seeing the old familiar stand-bys and landmarks fade into the distance; our course — the unknown seas of education. Appointing James Marsi, First Mate; Lois Hinxman, the Ship's Scribe, and Jane Randell, Pay Master, the ship, "Wilmington 1956" was well on her way.

"All hands on deck" was the call given by Miss Horner, the star by which our ship was first guided. Then the pails and mops were seen, and "maties" put the "Wilmington 1956" shipshape.

Boy! It was rough, but by mid-year we able seamen found ourselves climbing hand over hand, (or feet over feet in some cases), up the rigging. With many of our fellow hands showing great promise in sports, and others scholastically, we headed towards one of the stopping points on our journey. 'Twas a blustering voyage at times, but with brief breezes and fair weather we docked at port, having lost only a few sailors over the side. The best was yet to come, for then the cry was given, "Shore leave for three months!"

Second Cruise.

Temperature: Warmer.

Barometer: Rising perceptibly.

Wind: Remarkably increased velocity.

In September of 1953, Navigator Sandra Harris got out her sextant and compass; off we were again! After assembling the crew, Elaine Bemis was appointed First Mate; Barbara Odiorne, Ship's Clerk; and Jane Randell remained the Pay Master.

In no time at all we regained our sea legs, and were sailing full speed ahead into the French and English seas. The waves were very strong, and had even knocked a few of the hands over. At Christmas, with a peaceful sea and two bright stars (Mrs. Murphy and Mr. Moriarty) to guide us, the crew of "Wilmington 1956" sponsored "The Mistletoe Swing", in the ship's ballroom.

From the radio room we frequently received reports from our representatives: Nancy Andersen, Jeanne Ashworth, Patricia Bennett and Louise Carnes, who were active in the school government. All reports were favorable and indicated that our sports-like middies were making their way successfully on the basketball court, ice rink, and later on the baseball field.

With the appearance of spring came the unquestionable disease, spring fever. Many a midshipman's heart turned to love, and our vessel met with a dead calm. "Never fear, me hearties", declared Mrs. Nichols, R. N., "My supersonic tonic will cure what ails ye!" Sure enough, a quick recovery was brought about, and "Wilmington 1956" made port, colors flying. "Land and leave, Ahoy!"

Third Cruise.

Temperature: Warm.

Barometer: Still rising.

Wind: Strong.

With a "Heave ho, me hearties!" and with sails spread, we left on the third portion of our voyage in September of 1954 under the guiding stars of Mrs. Webber and Mr. DeLuca. Skipper Robert Matonis cast a traverse, having the full support of the other officers on the bridge, who were: Eileen Ingalls, First Mate; Barbara Odiorne, Ships Recorder; and Martha Ross, Ship's Stewardess.

For the most part we kept a steady course, but on occasion ran into a chemistry or typing storm which was usually accompanied by a shorthand squall. The chemists, hanging on to their test tubes, mixed some chemicals; the typist typed a few magical words, and then the sun appeared. "Ah me maties, swab the deck and bail her out!"

With a trim ship, the ballroom doors were thrown open and two dances were held — one in November, "The Turkey Trot"; and the other in March, "The Shamrock Shamble".

During this, our third course, we accomplished much in the way of advancing in life and education. Aloft in the radio room, we learned that Frank DePiano was elected captain of the football squad, and Bob Branscombe and Dick Moore were heading the baseball team. With this great news of our sportsmen, (and women), the crew was rearing to go, and just that they did, for it was full speed ahead. We landed in the port of Ex-Juniors after a somewhat stormy, but pleasant voyage. For three months again, the sails remained lowered.

Fourth Cruise.

Temperature: Balmy.

Barometer: The needle is quivering. (I think the darn thing is broken.)

Wind: High reaching gale forces in some parts.

September, 1955; we, the crew of the "Wilmington 1956", weighed anchor again for this, the fourth and last time. On the bridge, Captain Bob Swanson corrected the distance and maintained the bearings. Elaine Bemis was standing by to relieve the captain at any time, and Barbara Odiorne was jotting down all worthy events. Yes, as you probably guessed, Martha Ross was trailing almost every sailor on board, trying her best to collect the dues.

There is an old saying, "All I ask is a tall ship and star to guide her by"; well, we had the ship and, fortunately for us, two shining stars, Miss Horner and Mr. Barrett, to steer her by. Reaching the heights of her glory, our vessel sailed handsomely on and her crew was inclined, to some extent, to follow the same procedure.

Hot off the short wave came the news that we again had wonderful sportsmen among us. Bob Branscombe and Jay Palmer were elected co-captains of the football squad, and Dick Ethier and Charles Rounds headed the basketball team, while Bob Swanson and George Clements led the way down to the hockey rink. Do not dismay fair ladies, for Jeanne Ashworth and Pat Bennett were elected to lead many other capable maties in "manning the fighting top", for both the field hockey and the basketball teams.

Throughout this cruise, a powerful searchlight was focused on many newly acquired additions. Among these were the Foreign Language Club, Honor Society, Science Club and the Dramatics Club. During its search on the sea of activities, the light passed over many times the members of the Student Guide Association drawing attention to their outstanding qualities of leadership, dependability and school spirit.

To bring our journey to a close, the crew, under the guidance of Miss Marland first produced and directed the play, "It's All In Your Head", and then with the help of a near-by ship of Juniors, the maties undertook the pleasant duties of planning and making a success of the Junior-Senior Prom and supper.

An order from the Captain, "Take in the sail and throw out the anchor!" Yes, we reached our destination and the time came for us to part, but never finer and happier memories can a ship hold, than does the "Wilmington 1956". The good old ship is safely set at dock, but it will not remain there forever, for in the years to come, many a reunion cruise will be taken and the events of "Wilmington 1956's" past will unfold in the mind of every member of her loyal crew.

Class Prophecy of 1956

SANDRA HARRIS

As I sat in the gaily decorated law office of Harris, Williams, and Kitchener, a piercing ring of the telephone broke the stillness. By means of a long distance call from Wilmington, my old home town, I heard the pleasant voice of my former school-mate, Louise Carnes, who is now a telephone operator. She connected me to a party by the name of McKinney, Sheila to be specific, the proud owner of Wilmington's only day nursery, "IN BY NINE, OUT BY FIVE." I was to be ready when a special taxi came for me. No sooner had I said goodbye, when a low car came roaring up to the building. Bob Matonis opened the door, and I climbed in. I didn't have long to talk to Bob, as we were stopped for speeding just inside Wilmington's limits. Sergeant Leo Brennick, along with officers Frannie Brisbois, Richard Harnish, and Frankie Stone, got out of the car. Seeing who it was, they gave us a warning, and went on their way. Bob told me I was to stay overnight at Randell and Bemis' Hotel, after attending a testimonial dinner for that famous skating star, Jeanne Ashworth.

It was wonderful to see Jane and Elaine again on arriving at the hotel; after ten years they were still the same wonderful people! I changed into something more appropriate for the dinner, and all three of us went over to the enormous town auditorium. The dinner soon got under way, with a brief, inspiring talk by Reverend Father James Lawrence, on the troubles with which every person living today is faced. After a delightful meal, the mayor of Wilmington, Andrew Pupa, along with that world renowned educator and lecturer, who overcame the many obstacles fate placed in her path to success, Louise DeLisle, made speeches enjoyed by everyone. Following Andrew and Louise's addresses, Jeanne made the closing speech, then came over and we talked of old times together in school, thus terminating the evening.

I came back to the hotel, and went to my room for a little relaxation. This idea was soon abandoned, however, at a knock at the door. Teddy Smith, now a brush salesman, convinced me that I just couldn't do without an Ipsi Pipsi book brush.

The next morning, when I awoke, I found Sheila waiting for me. On the way to the courthouse, she explained her problem to me. She said she could've sworn that the clutch was the brake, when she stepped on it and released the gears, letting the car roll free. Her enormous car went crashing into Leonard's Bake Shop, and Pat burned all her muffins, her day's supply. Pat was suing Sheila for her burned muffins, and Sheila wouldn't pay! Sheila claimed they made cars the wrong way — with the brake being on the wrong side. She was my client, and I was supposed to win her case for her!

We arrived at the courthouse by means of the "TOWN'S TWO TIRELESS TAXIS" owned by Richard Moore and James Marsi, and we were greeted by clerk of courts, Robert Reed. I entered the court-room, and was confronted with the jury, composed of twelve prominent town members. Jack Paul, town engineer; Georgianna Parks, head of the English Department at the high school; Charles Rounds, dentist; Robert Sweet, candy-maker, Nita VonKahle, registered nurse; Pat Bennett, head of school athletics; Lorraine Richard, author of the newspaper column, "'FRANK FACTS FOR FAMILY FEUDS"; Carol Casey and Venie Melzar, important school committee members; Marion Carr, owner of the town's Amusement Arcade; Francine Boudreau, town librarian; and Edna Burns, proprietor of the Beauty Gardens Salon, in Wilmington Square. I greeted them all, and took my seat at the front of the court-room to see my adversary — there sat Nancy Andersen beside Pat. So, she had become a lawyer, too! This promised to be an intriguing case!

Just then, the whole court rose to honor the judge who was making her entrance. By this time, I was pretty well resigned to shocks, but this one was a little too much for me. Barbara Odiorne, my old school chum, took the judge's bench and rapped the gavel to begin. I had to sit down after this one! Imagine, Barb a judge! Well, life plays some funny tricks on us!

Robert began the case by swearing in Pat as the plaintiff. The witnesses followed next. Nancy brought Richard Ethier and John Paine, local truckdrivers, to the stand, along with the following, to testify in Pat's behalf: John Wilson, town druggist; Sally Higginbotham, well known debutante; Lester Chisholm and Ralph Chisholm, brother breeders of a new breed, "THE SMINK", a cross between a skunk and a mink; Chris Curtin, Lillian Castellano, and Pat Cushing, waitresses at "THE BURNED LAMB CHOP", owned by Madelyn Carta and Carol Chapman; and Marion Buck and Betty Wood, running reporters for that enormous paper, "THE ALPHA". Even the editor, Richard Cavallaro, with his two associates, namely, Malcolm Jones, and Peter Enos, were called to the stand. Also, Ronald Raposo, salesman for Loans and Leases, Inc., owned by Francis Kaszynski; and Thomas Grinley, master mechanic for Damie's Garage, now owned by Ernest Jerrett. From time to time, I noticed the exchange of daggers in the competitive glances between Richard Cavallaro, edior of "THE ALPHA", and James Kerr, editor of the "CRUSADER", who was backed up by four of his associates, and three of his star reporters, James Gass, John Hartnett, Lois Hinxman, Harold McPhee, and Barbara Cole, Mary McCormack, and Ellen Pilcher, respectively.

During a five-minute breather, court recorder, Ann Gatta, made a vain attempt to quiet the lively children of some of the housewives viewing the case. When I turned around, I saw Maureen McKenna, Irene Rogers, Joan Molway, Pauline Moriarty, Dorothy Reardon, Pat Rooney, and Martha Park, literally falling over each other trying to aid Ann in rounding up their little monsters!

I had stepped outside for a moment to clear my brain of the stuffy courtroom atmosphere, when I spied the town funeral home. Outside was the sign, "FEEL DEAD TIRED? THEN COME RIGHT IN! YOU'RE NOT ALONE!", proprietors, Robert Swanson, Bernard Nally, William Hall, and James Crehan. At this, I had to laugh — those characters!

In the second session, witnesses for Sheila were brought forth. They were as follows: Martha Boyle, now a vivacious airline hostess for P. A. A.; Rebecca Emery, Dorsey Kelley, and Lorraine Fidler, movie stars for M. G. M., with their manager and producer, Robert Barrett, and Fred Robbins, George Clements, Stephen Tucker, and Alton Syvertson, pilots for the Wilmington Airport on Burlington Avenue; James Dawson, share owner in Sunnyhurst Dairy; Rosalie Cuoco, and Jean Lewis, partners in the Italo-American Restaurant, specializing in Chinese food. Rosalie owns the Italo, and Jean, the American; as for the Chinese, no one ever could figure out where that came from.

Next came the tap dancer, Charles Rooney, along with art teacher, James Palmer, and Martha Ross, secretary to the principal of the high school; Albert Roberts was also on hand, in his new fire department suit, along with famous stock car drivers of the new Wilmington Racing Arena, Donald Devlin, Ronald Fuller, Gerald Devlin, and William Doucette, who gave their experienced opinions on the situation. Uuno Stone, and Nagel Stone, the brothers who are currently carrying on for the Smith Brothers in their cough concern, gave out free samples of their product to everyone present. Nurses Beverly Bryant, Dorothy DeFelice, and Wanece Chislett were next to last to be heard from. Last, but not least, was registry man, Robert Cosman.

Nancy then summarized for the jury, after which I gave my final plea. Barb then dismissed the jury to find a verdict. After some deliberation, the jury filed back into the courtrocm and Pat Bennett announced a hung jury. This verdict left it up to Judge Odiorne to decide. Rapping the gavel for attention, Barb announced that she would like to have the manufacturers of Sheila's car step forward. Robert Branscombe, and Joseph Rexford immediately appeared before her. Barb continued in a low, fair voice, telling them that, from the evidence viewed, she wholeheartedly agreed with the jury, that the fault did not lie in Sheila's driving, and so Pat could not claim a case against Sheila. Since Pat should be paid for her muffins, however, the court had come to a logical decision. In view of the fact that cars are made with such a tremendous amount of unnecessary speed and power, and also because of a highly complicated instrument panel, the manufacturers would be obligated to pay any debts incurred to Miss Leonard as a result of this accident. Barb did not stop here; she gave the guilty parties a piece of valuable advice, this being a design a new type car for pedal. At this, a slight giggle broke the stagwomen — clutch, brake and gas all in one nant air, and Barb adjourned court.

Nancy and I shook hands, and all were happy!

Judging from this court-case scene, just witnessed, I think you will agree with this conclusion. The class of '56 heeded well its motto, "THERE IS NO VICTORY WITHOUT EFFORT", for certainly all of our members have gone on to attain in life the success that they wished and warranted.

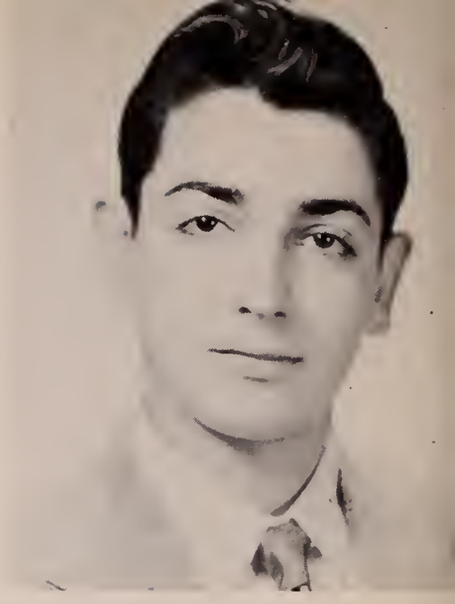
Class Will



RICHARD CAVALLARO

We, the Class of 1956 of Wilmington High School, being of reasonably sound mind and memory, do hereby make and publish this, our last will and testament. We bequeath the following:

TO THE PRINCIPAL AND FACULTY MEMBERS: the pleasure of being rid of us; restful nights and peaceful days.

TO THE JUNIOR CLASS: regrets for the opportunities we have lost and resolutions we didn't keep.

TO THE SOPHOMORES: the few traces of meekness and humility that we have left. They don't seem to have any, so even a little should be welcome!

TO THE FRESHMEN: all our dreams that didn't come true.

NANCY ANDERSEN leaves her size 9½ shoes to whoever can get into them.

JEANNE ASHWORTH leaves the governor she meant to put on her car to Bill Rosa.

ROBERT BARRETT leaves his "Dennis the Menace" Mischief Kit to give the freshmen more ideas.

ELAINE BEMIS leaves Miss Horner a pair of earplugs for next year's homeroom.

PATRICIA BENNETT leaves her sense of humor to some of the faculty.

FRANCINE BOUDREAU leaves a road map and other various souvenirs from Burlington to Edie Carnes.

MARTHA BOYLE leaves her package of clothing tags to some poor soul.

ROBERT BRANSCOMBE leaves the books he never seemed to find any use for to John Smally.

LEO BRENNICK leaves the mustache he almost grew to the cafe as a cookie duster.

FRANCIS BRISBOIS leaves his irresistible charm so the girls won't be lonely to his brother Bob.

BEVERLY BRYANT leaves her ever-loving shorthand book to Mrs. Webber.

MARION BUCK leaves a free pass to the "128 Drive In," in Burlington.

JOSEPH REXFORD leaves his acting ability to next year's Senior Play Cast.

MARIE RICHARD leaves her book of compliments to Margery Beddoes.

FRED ROBBINS leaves Phil a trail to follow into the Marine Base.

ALBERT ROBERTS leaves his curls to some girl who doesn't have a "Toni".

IRENE ROGERS leaves her silence to the noisey seventh and eighth grades.

CHARLES ROONEY leaves his size to next year's football team.

PATRICIA ROONEY leaves gladly!

CHARLES ROUNDS leaves his padded headgear for low doorways, to Winston Fairfield.

MARTHA ROSS leaves her treasury books and receipts to next year's treasurer.

THEODORE SMITH leaves one of his fancy shirts and his red hair to Mr. Barrett.

FRANK STONE leaves a bottle of nerve tonic to any one of his teachers.

NAGEL STONE leaves "nothing to nobody."

UUNO STONE leaves on time for a change.

ROBERT SWANSON leaves his broken hockey stick to Norm Carlson, with hopes that he may be able to win a game with it.

ALTON SYVERTSON leaves one extra large supply of absences for use by future classes.

ROBERT SWEET leaves his tolerance to teachers on the verge of madness.

STEPHEN TUCKER leaves his gymnastic ability to Tony Marmiani.

NITA VON KAHLE leaves to hypocrites a valuable piece of advice — never say behind one's back what you can say to his face.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS leaves his "Mad" comic books to next year's Physics 12A.

JOHN WILSON leaves his Wildroot commercial to next year's Glee Club.

ELIZABETH WOOD leaves behind her record of the "Mickey Mouse Mambo".

To the school we leave the last of happy memories we have collected over the last four years; our thrills and excitement at being the first class to use the new gym and graduate in the auditorium; our genuine affection for what has been our "home away from home" for so long; and our pledge of loyalty to all W. H. S. activities in the future.

To this we set our hand and seal the twelfth day of June, in the year of our Lord 19-56 in the Town of Wilmington, State of Massachusetts.

A Student's Prayer

Freshman Prayer:

Grant me, O Lord, the will to do right,
And keep me in teachers' good grace and light;
Preserve all my hundreds throughout this hard term,
And keep me for next year, so I may learn.

Sophomore Prayer:

Grant me, O Lord, a senior's bright smile,
And through those bars I will not file;
Oh, to be like him, how I would plod;
Next to your grace, a senior is Lord!

Junior Prayer:

We pray this year, O Lord, to do our very best,
To stop all our silly fights, and give our teachers rest;
But when to the breezes, this year has finally flown;
We Juniors, hope as Seniors, we'll be put on our own.

Senior Prayer:

Commend me, O Lord, I outsmarted 'em all,
I passed my four years and had me a ball,
Now I am through, and need go no higher,
I'm ready now to set the world afire!
"whose hopes are high"
"whose faith is true"
"who cares the most"
"teacher, 'tis you!!!"
